Patrons of the Hung Far Low Restaurant who may not be familiar with ordering Chinese dishes will find that it is the policy of the management to aid them in having an enjoyable repast without going to unnecessary expense.

Suggestion is offered dining parties that all Chinese dishes are served in very generous portions, almost any order, except soup, being sufficient for two or three persons if supplemented by some other order.

For instance, instead of individual orders, if a party of four orders a variety of single dishes to be served to all on individual plates after being brought to the table, a really pretentious spread may be secured at a trifling expense.

Wholesome, delicious chop suey is prepared in a very airy and sanitary kitchen. Food cooked as only Chinese chefs know how, with the irresistible tang and flavor of their typical native dishes.
